

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURES

To provide system to easily and quickly integrate and display information required by a user in accordance with the user's setup.

The system includes a network; a terminal which is connected to the network and transmits page setup information, which includes addresses of web pages which a user intends to integrate into a single page and information which indicate a layout of the single page, to said network; and a server which includes a registration element which registers the page setup information, a page generation element which generates the single page based on the page setup information, and a communication element which receives the page setup information from the network and transmits the single page to the terminal via the network.

10
5
09007077-062504